Street-Improvement Fund of $200,000. Considering the growth and needs of Richmond but a pitiful sum of money was appropriated for street improvements this year. Public enterprise has not kept pace with individual enterprise. law expressly designates for this duty Building has outstripped street-making, whereas the latter should lead.

We have found no intelligent and "progressive" citizen who approves this policy, and the excuse for it is that the money is not in the city treasury, It says that as the returns now and cannot be gotten there without an increase of taxation. It is true that some vague hopes are held out that perhaps in 1891 when we come to realize from our increased taxables we may have funds in excess of other govern mental demands which may be made applicable to this great purpose.

It is very doubtful if, when the time comes for the apportionment of our municipal revenues in the spring of 1891, much money will be left for streets, for instead of making this a favored item in the budget it is usual to force it into the position of a residuary legatee-to get what remains after all other claimants thirteen Democrats and twenty-seven are satisfied. This will not do for the future. We must pursue a different plan or else let our thoroughfares go to wreck.

The streets need money and must have it. For two or three years past dreadfully insufficient sums have been appropriated to them. We are confident that we voice the sentiment of the taxpayers of this community when we say that they do not wish this policy to be pursued further, because a longer continuance of it will chill the ardor of men who are waiting for street improvements to begin extensive building operations,

The general feeling is that we should avail ourselves of the present tide of certificates for more representatives than prosperity and spread our sails to catch such town, ward, or class are presented.
